North Hampton, NH, August 4, 2009 – Today, Arlington Capital Partners (www.arlingtoncap.com) announced the acquisition of J.A. Reinhardt and Company Inc. (J.A. Reinhardt), located in Mountainhome, PA. The combination of J.A. Reinhardt and the TSI Group, Inc. (TSI) further enhances the defense and aerospace portfolio of Arlington Capital Partners. J.A. Reinhardt designs, engineers and manufactures thermal and mechanical products such as avionics chassis, cold plates, complex electronic housings with integrated cold walls, heat exchangers and microwave antennas for the defense and aerospace industries.

Greg Tucker, CEO of TSI, states, “The acquisition of J.A. Reinhardt reaffirms TSI as the industry leader in thermal management and electronics cooling. I am excited to leverage the expertise of existing TSI brazing companies with J.A. Reinhardt to enhance our thermal solution offerings and improve our value offering to our customers.”

Gary Reinhardt, president of J.A. Reinhardt, states, “J.A. Reinhardt has been a family run business for over 60 years. When we looked at becoming part of a larger company, it was important to find the right partner and that led us to TSI. They offer an entrepreneurial environment and support our business values. Mostly, we became part of TSI because we share a mission—to offer customers the highest quality and best value thermal solutions in the industry.”

“The acquisition of J.A. Reinhardt underscores TSI’s commitment to delivering superior brazing and thermal management solutions to their customers,” said Robert Knibb of Arlington Capital Partners. Peter Manos of Arlington Capital Partners added, “With this acquisition, TSI adds yet another key player in the thermal management industry to their team, and brings together the largest brazing capacity and the most sophisticated manufacturing techniques in the industry.”
