TSI Group, Inc. Announces the Appointment of Robert Manning

NORTH HAMPTON, N.H., May 15, 2007—TSI Group, Inc. is pleased to announce the appointment of Robert C. Manning as vice president of quality and continuous improvement for TSI effective May 14, 2007.

As vice president of quality and continuous improvement, Robert will be responsible for leading, managing and implementing continuous improvement programs throughout the TSI businesses. Programs such as 5S, Lean, Kaizen and other practical process improvement initiatives will be introduced and implemented at each site in support of our goal of becoming a leader in world class business practices.

Robert joins TSI from Thermo Fisher Scientific, where he was the director of quality and practical process improvement for the temperature control business. Prior to becoming director of quality and practical process improvement, he was manager of manufacturing engineering and quality for Thermo Fisher Scientific Waters Group located in Beverly, MA. Prior to Thermo Fisher Scientific, he worked for Lockheed Martin Corporation, currently BAE Systems, located in Nashua, N.H. During his career at Lockheed Martin, Robert worked in the Countermeasures Division and was responsible for negotiating contracts with the Department of Defense on programs such as IDECM (Integrated Defense Electronic Counter Measure) and THAAD (Terminal High Altitude Area Defense).

Robert earned a Bachelor of Science degree from Plymouth State University and earned his Masters of Business Administration from Rivier College, located in Nashua, N.H.

The TSI Group is a world-class supplier of high quality custom engineered electronic assemblies, cables, components, and enclosures for security, military and commercial applications. Our reputation for creating innovative solutions to mission critical applications has made TSI the company OEMs and end users alike turn to for dependable results.
